

I am studying AI software in communication devices for people with Locked-In syndrome because I want to identify if this new technology is more advanced than previous eye-tracking software used in order to help my reader understand how AI is proving to be useful in aiding communication in patients with complex neurological disorders.